MMARGARET NALLY, formerly Margaret Hutley, who left Braintree just over ten years ago with her family, has now been followed into the public relations field by two of her children. They are photographed above.

Denise is personal assistant to a P.R. consultant, and Patrick is a trainee executive in the P.R. department of a large agency. After ten years in agency and consultancy executive posts, Margaret has recently commenced operating as an independent consultant.

All three are members of the Institute of Public Relations, mother has been a full member for some years, Denise is a student now preparing for the IPR examinations and Patrick is an affiliate.

With the issue of temporary National Union of Journalists cards to the two children, the family is also the first to have three members in the Press and P.R. Branch.

field Road, Braintree, started the job as a teenager; since then hundreds of local children have been taught by her.
